Cures Woman's Weaknesses.

We refer to that boon to weak, nervous, suffering women known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Dr. John F. Pierce of the Editorial Staff of THE ECLECTIC MEDICAL REVIEW says of Unicorn root (Helonias dioica) which is one of the chief ingredients of the "Favorite Prescription":

"A remedy which invariably acts as a uterine invigorator... makes for normal activity of the entire reproductive system. He continues 'in Helonias we have a medicinal which more fully answers the above purposes than any other drug with which I am acquainted. In the treatment of diseases peculiar to women it is seldom that a case is seen which does not present some indication for this remedy...'

"The following are among the leading indications for Helonias (Unicorn root). Pain or aching in the back with leucorrhoea; stonic (acid) conditions of the reproductive organs of women, mental depression and irritability, associated with chronic diseases of the reproductive organs of women; constant sensation of heat in the region of the kidneys; menorrhoea (flowing) due to a weak condition of the reproductive system; amenorrhoea (absence of menstruation) or abnormal condition of the digestive organs and general (thin blood) habit; dragging sensations in the extreme lower part of the abdomen."

WOOD AND COAL.

Do not Crowd the Season.

The first warm days of spring bring with them a desire to get out and enjoy the exhilarating air and sunshine. Children that have been housed up all winter are brought out and you wonder where they all came from. The heavy winter clothing is thrown aside and many shed their flannels. Then a cold wave comes and people say that grip is epidemic. Colds at this season are even more dangerous than in mid-winter, as there is more danger of pneumonia. Take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, however, and you will have nothing to fear. It always cures, and we have never known a cold to result in pneumonia when it was used. It is pleasant and safe to take. Children like it. For sale by W. F. Creighton and Richard Gibson.

An Alarming State of Affairs

Be sure to come if you persist in buying poor coal—fire goes out, money goes out, house gets cold and you have to run for coal at all sorts of inopportune times, and wear out the coal-bod bringing it in, and without getting warm. If you buy the Lighthouse Coal we sell you'll have a fire that lasts and gives the heat you need.

HE KEPT ON SMOKING.

Along about the time that the 9 o'clock Atlantic City train on the Philadelphia and Reading road passes Pleasantville, Conductor Johnson and brakeman Frank Doughty begin to take an interest in their passengers and collect tickets. It is a dignified, almost solemn proceedings and innovations are frowned upon.

An innovation was aboard the train yesterday morning, a most striking innovation; an innovation about twenty years old, wearing a large picture hat trimmed with purple feathers and violets, a dashing tight-fitting, purple tunic made suit and a dark red vest with the cutst polka dots any woman could wish for. She was pretty, above all beautiful, and she took a seat in the smoking car. While the train was humming across the meadows she settled herself down in the cushions, rested her dainty head back against the dark green plush until the color scheme was perfect, elevated one foot on the top of the steam pipe at the side of the car and, yawning comfortably, picked a flat cigarette out of her silver purse, lit a match and sent a curling jet of smoke floating off towards the thermometer which hung from the bell rope.

There were four men in the car, observing men, men who looked as though they had had lies. Each tried to look scandalized; yet they looked where scandal might be found and they smiled. The pretty little innovation did not seem to mind them.

Brakeman Frank Doughty, whose duties once owned pretty much all of South Jersey entered the car. On all well regulated railroads it would be a breach of etiquette for the conductor to descend himself by entering first. Any day Doughty entered. He gave the customary double shuffle with the ventilators and hammered away at the steam cock which regulates the heat thing.

He caught sight of the blue smoke that played ring-around-the-roy with the purple feathers. He took a step forward, saw he was confronted both with an innovation and an emergency, and dashed to the door.

"Miss, this is the smoking car."

"Thank you, it's awfully nice for you to tell me."

"Yes, not at all I assure you; but this is the smoking car—where men smoke."

"So I see," and the purple feathers jiggled.

"But you can't smoke here," Doughty was getting flustered.

"N! But I am smoking; don't you see?"

There was no answer under the sun to that, and it was then that Conductor Johnson entered. Doughty made a run for him, whispered his worst fears and stood aside. Now, Johnson is a tall, dignified conductor and he wore his most pious expression when he said:

"Madam, this is the smoking car."

"So the brakeman just informed me."

"Women do not as a rule smoke here."

"Is there a place for women to smoke, won't you tell me where I can find it?"

"But smoking by women is not allowed."

There was a twinkle as the girl replied: "I am not smoking aloud, I am very quiet."

And she sent a great big wreath of smoke toward Johnson. It formed a halo around his head for a second and wafted away.

"Put her out," shouted one of the family men as he winked secretly at the purple and violet hat. "Throw her off!" and his words were supported by another family man who, asserted: "Taint right, 'taint right."

Johnson suddenly got tangled up in the legal phrase of the case, rights of women and all that. Then he saw the innovation wink back at the passengers and he wandered away as a man stricken.

And the purple innovation tripped daintily from the car at Camden, and the shameless thing of it all was that she firmly, but kindly refused any help from the family men, or to tell them who she was.

Can you believe your senses? When two of them, taste and smell, having been impaired, if not utterly destroyed, by Nasal Catarrh, are fully restored by Ely's Cream Balm, can you doubt that this remedy deserves all that has been said of it by the thousands who have used it? It is applied directly to the affected air-passages and begins its healing work at once. Why not get it today? All druggists or mailed by Ely Bros., 65 Warren Street, New York, on receipt of 20 cents.
